Tamil Eelam National Women's Day – 10 October 2026

Congratulations to Mrs Navanethem Pillay, Recipient of the 2026 Nobel Peace Prize

On the occasion of Tamileelam National Women's Day, we are delighted and immensely proud to congratulate Mrs Navanethem Pillay, a distinguished woman of Tamil ancestry, on being awarded the 2026 Nobel Peace Prize, one of the world's most prestigious international honors.

Her remarkable achievement is a moment of pride and significance for the Eelam Tamil people. Her Tamil heritage and lifelong dedication to human rights, international justice, and accountability make this recognition especially meaningful to Tamil nation.

During her tenure as the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, Mrs Pillay strongly emphasized the need for an independent international investigation into the grave human rights violations committed during the armed conflict in Tamileelam, the traditional homeland of the Eelam Tamil people, which remains under Sri Lankan control.

Her principled stance and commitment to international accountability during one of the most difficult periods in our history remain deeply significant to the Eelam Tamil people, who continue to seek truth, justice, and accountability for the grave injustices committed against them.

Her recognition through the Nobel Peace Prize also highlights the importance of international law, the protection of human dignity, and the pursuit of justice for victims of serious human rights violations.

As a Tamil Eelam advocacy organization, we remember with profound gratitude the principled position Mrs Pillay maintained during a challenging period in our people's history.

On behalf of our organization and the people of Tamileelam, we extend our warmest congratulations and heartfelt appreciation to Mrs Navanethem Pillay on this historic achievement.

We wish her lasting peace, happiness, good health, and continued well-being.

On behalf of Eelam Tamils,
International Council of Eelam Tamils.
